

Maple Wind Farm in Huntington is proud to partner with the Vermont Youth Corps.

Bruce Hennessey and Beth Whiting are inspired to be involved with The Monitor Barns Farm: a union of our love of farming, education and providing access to farm fresh food to a wide audience.

We have been producing the healthiest and highest quality food from our Green Mountain hilltop home since 1999. Our animals are raised happy and healthy, with care and respect through our commitment to natural feeds and processes.

We are grass farmers. What the sun provides, it provides to our animals and in turn provides a much healthier product for us to consume. Our commitments include: No antibiotics or hormones used on our animals, animals graze as nature intended, high soil fertility and a lower carbon footprint with grazing, wind power and draft horses.

You have a choice in the food you eat. It is important to have a connection to the food, the farmers that grow and raise the food, and the land from which it comes. Your choice is essential in support of our sustainable food system.

Thank you for your support of our family farm. We welcome you to contact us with questions. Eat well, Bruce and Beth
